ADA Guidance for University Events

Purpose

Western Kentucky University (WKU) sponsors events open to persons within and outside the University community. With certain exceptions, under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, as amended (ADA) and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008 (ADAAA), WKU has an obligation to make reasonable accommodations for persons with disabilities, including members of the public, which will enable those persons to participate in sponsored events.

The following information provides guidance for event sponsors in fulfilling their responsibility to provide accommodations as required by the ADA. This statement does not expand WKU's obligation beyond the standards required by law.

Definition

Events are programs and activities sponsored by WKU open to persons, including the public, with or without a fee. Examples include, but are not limited to, workshops, conferences, continuing education, tours, career fairs, commencement, and campus visits. An event sponsor is the individual(s) representing a University office, department, or organization who hosts and coordinates a specific event program or activity.

Accommodations are adjustments and modifications that enable a person with a disability to participate in an event. The University reserves the right to decide the type of accommodation provided, as long as it addresses the special needs of an individual. Accommodations through auxiliary aids, and services such as Braille materials, sign language interpreters, and adaptive technology, are considered reasonable for certain disabilities, provided the disabled person gives WKU sufficient notice to obtain the needed accommodation. Provision of personal devices such as hearing aids, crutches, and wheelchairs is not required.

Planning

Advance planning provides opportunities to anticipate potential issues, identify alternatives, and facilitate a response to accommodation requests. When planning, event sponsors should consider the following (not all inclusive):

- Assess in the special nature of the event site.
 - Verify that facilities where event activities will take place are physically accessible.
 - Check exterior and interior building access (e.g., ramps, entrances, wheelchair seating, functional elevators, accessible restrooms, Braille signage).
 - Consider the impact of construction projects and potential blockages of sidewalks, ramps, and accessible parking.
 - Consider transportation issues for events that span different locations.

- Verify availability and timeframes to acquire special services such as adaptive technology, sign language interpreters, or personnel with other specialized expertise.
- Request notification of special needs in the event’s promotional materials to project a welcoming environment and provide a timely accommodation response. See the sample message below.

Western Kentucky University welcomes you to (event). If you require an accommodation under the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, as amended (ADA) and the ADA Amendments Act of 2008 (ADAAA), please contact the office of Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action/University ADA Services if faculty or staff, or the office of Student Accessibility Resource Center if a student, to communicate your needs. Early notification is encouraged, and a request (timeframe sponsor deems reasonable) before the event you plan to attend will facilitate the provision of a reasonable accommodation.

- Communicate special needs to service providers who are impacted by the accommodation request. For example, if a sponsor arranges for overnight stays in University residence halls, the sponsor is to communicate special needs to Housing and Residence Life. Also, dietary restrictions may need to be coordinated with Food Services. Communication may involve follow-up if the sponsor receives a complaint regarding the accommodation.
- Incorporate safety awareness in planning as hazards can arise from inadequate seating, blocked aisles, and room egress, for example.
- Funding for accommodations can be obtained through event fees or other funding sources deemed appropriate by the sponsoring college’s or unit’s oversight office. Contingency items may be built into the event budget. Costs may also be allocated among units that jointly sponsor or benefit from the event.
