Bluegrass Middle School Principal Tanya Jury is the new Hardin County Schools director of high school curriculum, instruction and assessment.

In her new position, Jury will be responsible for working with administrators and teachers at the district's high schools to create and implement best-practice instructional strategies and a rigorous curriculum, a news release from the school district said.

She will replace the current director, Tanya Corder, who retires next month.

Jury also will serve as the district assessment coordinator and will work closely with the building assessment coordinator at each school.

"I will greatly miss the students, staff and families at Bluegrass," Jury said in the release. "However, I am looking forward to working closely with and supporting our high school administrators, counselors and teachers as we continue to provide excellent educational experiences and opportunities for all of the district's high school students."

Jury was the principal at Bluegrass for three years after serving as the school's assistant principal. She also was an assistant principal and principal at Nelson County High School for four years total.

Before working at Nelson County, she was an instructional specialist and assistant principal at Bluegrass. Her educational career started at Bardstown Middle School in 2006 where she taught reading, writing, science and social studies for seven years.

Jury is a Washington County High School and Western Kentucky University graduate. She earned her Master of Arts degree from Morehead State University. She holds a doctoral degree in education from the University of Kentucky.
